BILL

To provide for the co-ordination of concurrent national and provincial legislative competence over matters relating to casinos, racing, gambling and wagering, and to provide for the continued regulation of those matters; for that purpose to establish certain uniform norms and standards applicable to national and provincial regulation and licensing of certain gambling activities; to provide for the creation of additional uniform norms and standards applicable throughout the Republic; to retain the National Gambling Board; to establish the National Gambling Policy Council; to repeal the National Gambling Act, 1996; and to provide for matters incidental thereto.

PREAMBLE

CONSIDERING that the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996 (Act No. 108 of 1996), establishes that casinos, racing, gambling and wagering are matters of concurrent national and provincial legislative competence;

It is desirable to co-ordinate activities relating to the exercise of that concurrent competence within the national and provincial spheres of government;

It is desirable to establish certain uniform norms and standards applying generally throughout the Republic with regard to casinos, racing, gambling and wagering, so that—

- * gambling activities are effectively regulated, licenced, controlled and policed;
- * members of the public who participate in any licenced gambling activity are protected;
- * society and the economy are protected against over-stimulation of the latent demand for gambling; and
- * the licensing of gambling activities is transparent, fair and equitable.

It is expedient to establish certain national institutions, and to recognise the establishment of provincial institutions, which together will determine and administer national gambling policy in a co-operative, coherent and efficient manner.

BE IT ENACTED by the Parliament of the Republic of South Africa, as follows:—

Surrender of licence

60. (1) A licensee may surrender a licence by written notice given to the provincial licensing authority that issued the licence.

MEMORANDUM ON THE OBJECTS OF THE NATIONAL GAMBLING BILL, 2003

Background and objects of Bill

This Bill proposes to repeal the National Gambling Act, 1996 (Act No. 33 of 1996), and to re-enact many of its provisions in a new form, while adding several new provisions which introduce new policies for the concurrent national and provincial regulation of casinos, racing, gambling and wagering.

The new provisions of the Bill—

- (a) establish a common scheme of prohibited conduct relating to casinos, racing, gambling and wagering;
- (b) introduce prohibitions, requirements and standards to reduce the harmful social consequences of compulsive and addictive gambling;
- (c) introduce a system of registration of gambling machines to complement the existing system of provincial licensing;
- (d) provide for a common national system to electronically monitor limited pay-out gambling machines;
- (e) establish a new scheme of national licences to avoid the need for certain licensees to seek multiple approvals in more than one province;
- (f) provide for the inter-relationship between provincial regulatory agencies and the existing National Gambling Board;
- (g) introduce uniform licensing norms and standards applicable to provincial licences; and
- (h) establish a new inter-governmental consultative body, the National Gambling Policy Council.

Chapter 1 sets out the definitions and application provisions.

Chapter 2, Part A introduces a number of new provisions, which establish what activities are gambling activities and thus fall within the ambit of the Bill, what activities constitute bets and wagers, and what activities constitute gambling games. Although the formulations in Part A are new, the provisions continue the policy of the National Gambling Act, 1996, which included a complex series of definitions to achieve a similar effect.

Part B of Chapter 2 introduces new provisions, which give effect to a new policy of making unlicensed gambling activities unlawful on a uniform basis nationally. Section 7 goes beyond that, to introduce for the first time a prohibition against gambling on contingencies that are related to unlawful act or events. Section 11 prohibits interactive gaming, i.e. gambling over the Internet, except as authorised in terms of this Act or other legislation. No such legislation presently exists in the Republic, but the transitional provisions of this Bill set out a programme for preparing such legislation in consultation with the National Gambling Board and the provincial regulatory bodies, once all regulators have had sufficient time to properly study the policy issues and precedents for regulation. Section 14 introduces a scheme of voluntary and court-ordered exclusion from gambling of persons who may be at risk from addictive gambling. Section 16 advances the policy of the National Gambling Act, 1996, on the matter of enforceability of gambling debts. Under the existing Act, such a debt is legally enforceable if it is incurred in the course of a gambling activity regulated by, and not in conflict with, any law. Section 16 will change that. No debt incurred by a minor or an excluded person will be enforceable. In other cases, any debt incurred in the course of licensed gambling will be legally enforceable, debts incurred in the course of lawful gambling that does not have to be licensed, will be legally enforceable to the extent that common law or other legislation provides, and debt incurred in the course of unlawful gambling will not be enforceable at all. Winnings from unlawful gambling will be subject to forfeiture to the state.

Part C of Chapter 2 concerns policy in respect of the regulation of gambling premises and introduces further new provisions designed to address the concerns of over-stimulation of gambling. The remaining provisions of this part re-enact certain existing regulations promulgated under the National Gambling Act, 1996.

Part D of Chapter 2 concerns the registration and certification of gambling machines. Section 20 establishes a new national requirement for all manufacturers and importers of gambling machines and devices to keep registered records of the devices that they acquire, manufacture, sell or distribute, and to register them with a national registry. This system will allow life-time tracking of gambling machines and devices, reinforcing efforts of the National Gambling Board and the provincial regulatory bodies to detect unlawful gambling.

The additional sections of this Part establish national norms and standards for the calibration and certification of gambling devices. Section 26 re-enacts certain existing regulations promulgated under the National Gambling Act, 1996. Section 27 imposes on the National Gambling Board responsibility to establish a national central electronic monitoring system to record significant information relating to the use of limited pay-out machines.

Part E of Chapter 2 establishes national norms and standards relating to the licensing of employees within the gambling industry.

Casinos, racing, gambling and wagering are a matter of concurrent constitutional jurisdiction. Chapter 3 addresses the inter-relationship between the National Gambling Board and the provincial licensing bodies established under provincial legislation. Under the scheme set out in this Part, the National Gambling Board will evaluate the issuing of national licences, as provided for in the Bill, and will perform a general oversight function, to ensure that national norms and standards are being met by the various provincial licensing bodies. The jurisdiction of provincial licensing bodies under provincial legislation is recognised and affirmed in the Bill and in addition those bodies are assigned responsibility under the Bill to investigate applications for national licences, and to monitor compliance with such licences.

Section 36 assigns to the new National Gambling Policy Council a function of facilitating any dispute between the National Gambling Board and one or more provincial licensing bodies.

Part B of Chapter 3 introduces a scheme of national licences to be required for persons seeking to be licensed as a testing agent or a horse racing authority, and to be optional for manufactures, suppliers and maintenance providers or employees. An applicant for a national licence must apply to the provincial licensing body in their province of residence, or intended province of business, and that body will conduct the required investigation subject to evaluative oversight by the National Gambling Board.

Part C of Chapter 3 establishes or re-enacts certain existing national norms and standards concerning provincial licences. Section 45 replaces the former fixed and somewhat arbitrary maximum numbers of casino licences with a Ministerial authority to determine the maximum numbers from time to time, following criteria set out in the section. Those criteria require the Minister to balance competing considerations of a competitive marketplace, black economic empowerment, and the incidence and consequences of over-stimulation of gambling. Transitional provisions state that the existing maximums under the 1996 Act remain in force until the Minister first makes such a determination under the new scheme. Part D of Chapter 3 establishes or re-enacts certain existing, national norms and standards concerning the process of issuing both national and provincial licences. Parts E and F of Chapter 3 establish or re-enact certain existing, national norms and standards concerning licence investigations, decisions and surrender of licences. In particular, section 53 introduces a new requirement for black economic empowerment, and over-stimulation of gambling to be considered in evaluation of any licence application, and to be considered at every licence anniversary, and appropriate conditions attached to address those policy considerations. Section 54 requires consideration of competitive market conditions whenever a licence application is evaluated. Section 57 requires the National Gambling Board to establish a national probity register to support the investigative process conducted by the provincial licensing authorities. Chapter 4 establishes the new National Gambling Policy Council, and continues the existing National Gambling Board, although with a changed composition.

The National Gambling Policy Council comprises the Minister of Trade and Industry, the several provincial MECs responsible for casinos, racing, gambling and wagering, and, as supplementary non-voting members, the Chairperson of the National Gambling Board, and the Chairpersons of the several provincial licensing bodies.

The National Gambling Board will no longer include Chairpersons of the several provincial licensing bodies, because the Board no longer has a policy consideration function and because the Board has an oversight responsibility with respect to provincial licensing bodies. In most other respects, the Board's composition and corporate requirements are unchanged from the National Gambling Act, 1996, although the provisions have been changed to reflect the introduction of over-arching national legislation such as the Public Finance Management Act, 1999 (Act No. 1 of 1999).

Chapter 5 establishes or re-enacts certain existing, national norms and standards concerning enforcement, re-enacts provisions concerning the inspectors to be appointed by the National Gambling Board and establishes various offences under the Act.

Chapter 6 establishes the Minister's regulation-making authority, provides for transition from the regime under the National Gambling Act, 1996, and repeals that Act.

CONSULTATION PROCESS

Originally, it was contemplated that the Minister would propose a simple bill to amend the National Gambling Act, 1996. With that intent several drafts were prepared leading up to a discussion draft dated 16 January 2001. It was circulated by DTI for discussion to MINMEC and to the National Gambling Board, amongst others. As a result of discussions in MINMEC, several additional amendments were proposed and incorporated into a working document, in the form of a draft Bill.

DTI convened a consultative review for technical purposes with legal advisers from the various provincial administrations late in May 2001, to review and comment on the working document. Following that review, and after receiving directions from the Minister, DTI directed the development of a number of successive working drafts, culminating in a Draft Amendment Bill in late 2001.

The Minister requested—

- * introduction to the draft of appropriate measures concerning co-operative governance of this area of concurrent jurisdiction, as modelled in Chapter 3 of the Constitution;
- * a clear statement of the responsibilities for licensing various activities as between the national and provincial spheres of government;
- * within the framework of concurrent jurisdiction, a consolidated approach to addressing electronic monitoring of gambling machines;
- * proposals for addressing the urgent concern for compulsive and addictive gambling;
- * reference to Internet gambling, and a foundation on which to establish national regulation of that industry;
- * incorporation into the Act of several fundamental requirements currently found in regulations, and a better statutory foundation for remaining regulations; and
- * an edited, hopefully clearer language, draft.

Through the process of successive re-drafting, it became apparent that the changes that were required far exceeded the normal scope of an amendment bill, and that it would be difficult to honour the Minister's request for a clearer, more rationally organised Act without starting out afresh. Following a discussion on the merits of repealing and replacing the existing Act, (and having heard an appeal from members of the relevant parliamentary committee requesting fewer wholesale amendment bills), officials of DTI gave instructions for the preparation of a complete new Bill, incorporating the surviving provisions of the existing Act together with all new matters on which previous instructions had been given.

Between December 2001 and July 2002, six drafts of this Bill were prepared and circulated to the National Gambling Board and provincial licensing authorities. Consultations were held with legal advisers from the same bodies in May 2001, July 2002 and August 2002.

The seventh draft of the Bill, dated 10 August 2002, reflected discussions with provincial gambling board legal advisers held at Boksburg on 22 July 2002, subsequent discussions with officials of the NGB, and directions from officials of DTI up to 26 July 2002, as well as written comments received from provincial gambling board legal advisers and discussions held in Cape Town on 7 August 2002.

Following receipt of comments in response to Draft 7, an eighth draft was circulated in early December 2002, again inviting PLA and NGB submissions.

The ninth draft reflected the drafter's further refinements, based on responses to Draft 8, while Draft 10 incorporated the final instructions given by DTI in response to comments received after the release of Draft 9.

Draft 10 was distributed for public comment, and new instructions were given by DTI following the receipt of several submissions from interested parties. The Bill reflects the changes made in light of those submissions. In particular:

1. Provisions have been added to address concerns about over-stimulation of gambling and addictive and compulsive gambling, by—

- a. introducing a system of voluntary exclusion and court-ordered exclusion of vulnerable persons to prevent them from gambling, subject to transitional provisions that postpone use of the system until a registry is established;
 - b. imposing requirements for posting cautionary notices on licensed premises, and on gambling advertisements, and restrictions on advertising;
 - c. introducing a prohibition on the location of gambling premises near schools;
 - d. prohibiting the use of credit to pay for gambling and the placement of ATMs in licensed premises;
 - e. prohibiting discounts for related services provided by licensees;
 - f. introducing minimum daily closing hours;
 - g. providing for non-enforceability of gambling debt in certain cases;
 - h. providing for forfeiture of unlawful winnings;
 - i. requiring licensing authorities to consider applicants' commitments in regard to remediation of the social consequences of gambling, and to make licences subject to conditions in that regard, and to introduce annual monitoring of achievements by each licensee;
 - j. adding social consequences of gambling to the criteria to be considered by the Minister in determining the maximum numbers of casino licences to be issued.
2. The provisions concerning registration of gambling machines and devices have been streamlined to establish a single national registry, and by requiring manufacturers simply to register devices at the time of manufacture or import. Previous proposals requiring additional tagging or marking of devices have been withdrawn.
 3. The need for competition in the market has been addressed by replacing the arbitrary limits on the number of casinos with a criteria-based system of regulation. The former proposals to impose license term limits have been withdrawn.
 4. The need to address concerns of black economic empowerment is reflected in new provisions—
 - a. requiring licensing authorities to consider applicants' commitments in regard to black economic empowerment and to make licences subject to conditions in that regard and to introduce annual monitoring of achievements by each licensee; and
 - b. adding black economic empowerment to the criteria to be considered by the Minister in determining the maximum numbers of casino licences to be issued.

In addition, some re-organisation of sections, revisions of definitions, corrections of internal references, and other technical alterations have been made to the Bill.
